A yule time parade

Christmas Arrives In Upland

With balloons in hand and candy at their feet, hundreds of youngsters watched hundreds of other children usher in the yuletide season as they marched in the Upland Christmas Parade.

It was indeed a children's parade.

Throngs of Upland and Montclair girl scouts — from Daisy troops on up — filled out the middle of last week's parade through the Town Center with their Christmas songs and imaginative outfits.

While some stuck to the traditional uniforms, many were geared up as reindeer, elves and even gift-wrapped boxes.

They were joined by dozens of eager young students from Suzanne's Performing Arts Studio decked out in colorful tutus and tap shoes.

Along the side was an even more eager battalion of parents running after them shoulderng video cameras or clicking cameras.

Another group of young girls, the performing group The Sunshine Generation, arrived late, but soon caught up. They sang "Jingle Bells," to the accompaniment of the bells on their wrists as they marched by in their yellow and orange dresses and bloomers.

Young people from church groups re-enacted the nativity scene, with shorter versions of Mary and Joseph, shepherds and wise men and pint-sized angels.

Two cub scout troops represented most of the young males in the parade, as the majority of boys at last week's festivities seemed content to remain in the audience.

And being in the audience was not a bad choice, judging by the slew of candy thrown their way. But even the young candy throwers seemed to be enjoying being at the giving end.

There were costumed characters galore, with Mount Baldy Shriners dressing up as Sylvester the Cat, Porky Pig, Snoopy and a gorilla. The latter outfit was reportedly filled out by former county supervisor Cal McElwain.

Several clowns, some of them handing out balloons, delighted the youngsters. Even Alice in Wonderland and the perennially late White Rabbit appeared sitting atop a limousine.

There were some real dogs, too. The five homeless canines dressed in red coats with festive green trim were walked by members of PAWS (Promote Animal Welfare and Safety). One of the PAWS members carried a sign with their unspoken words spelled out: Dear Santa, Please bring us homes for Christmas.

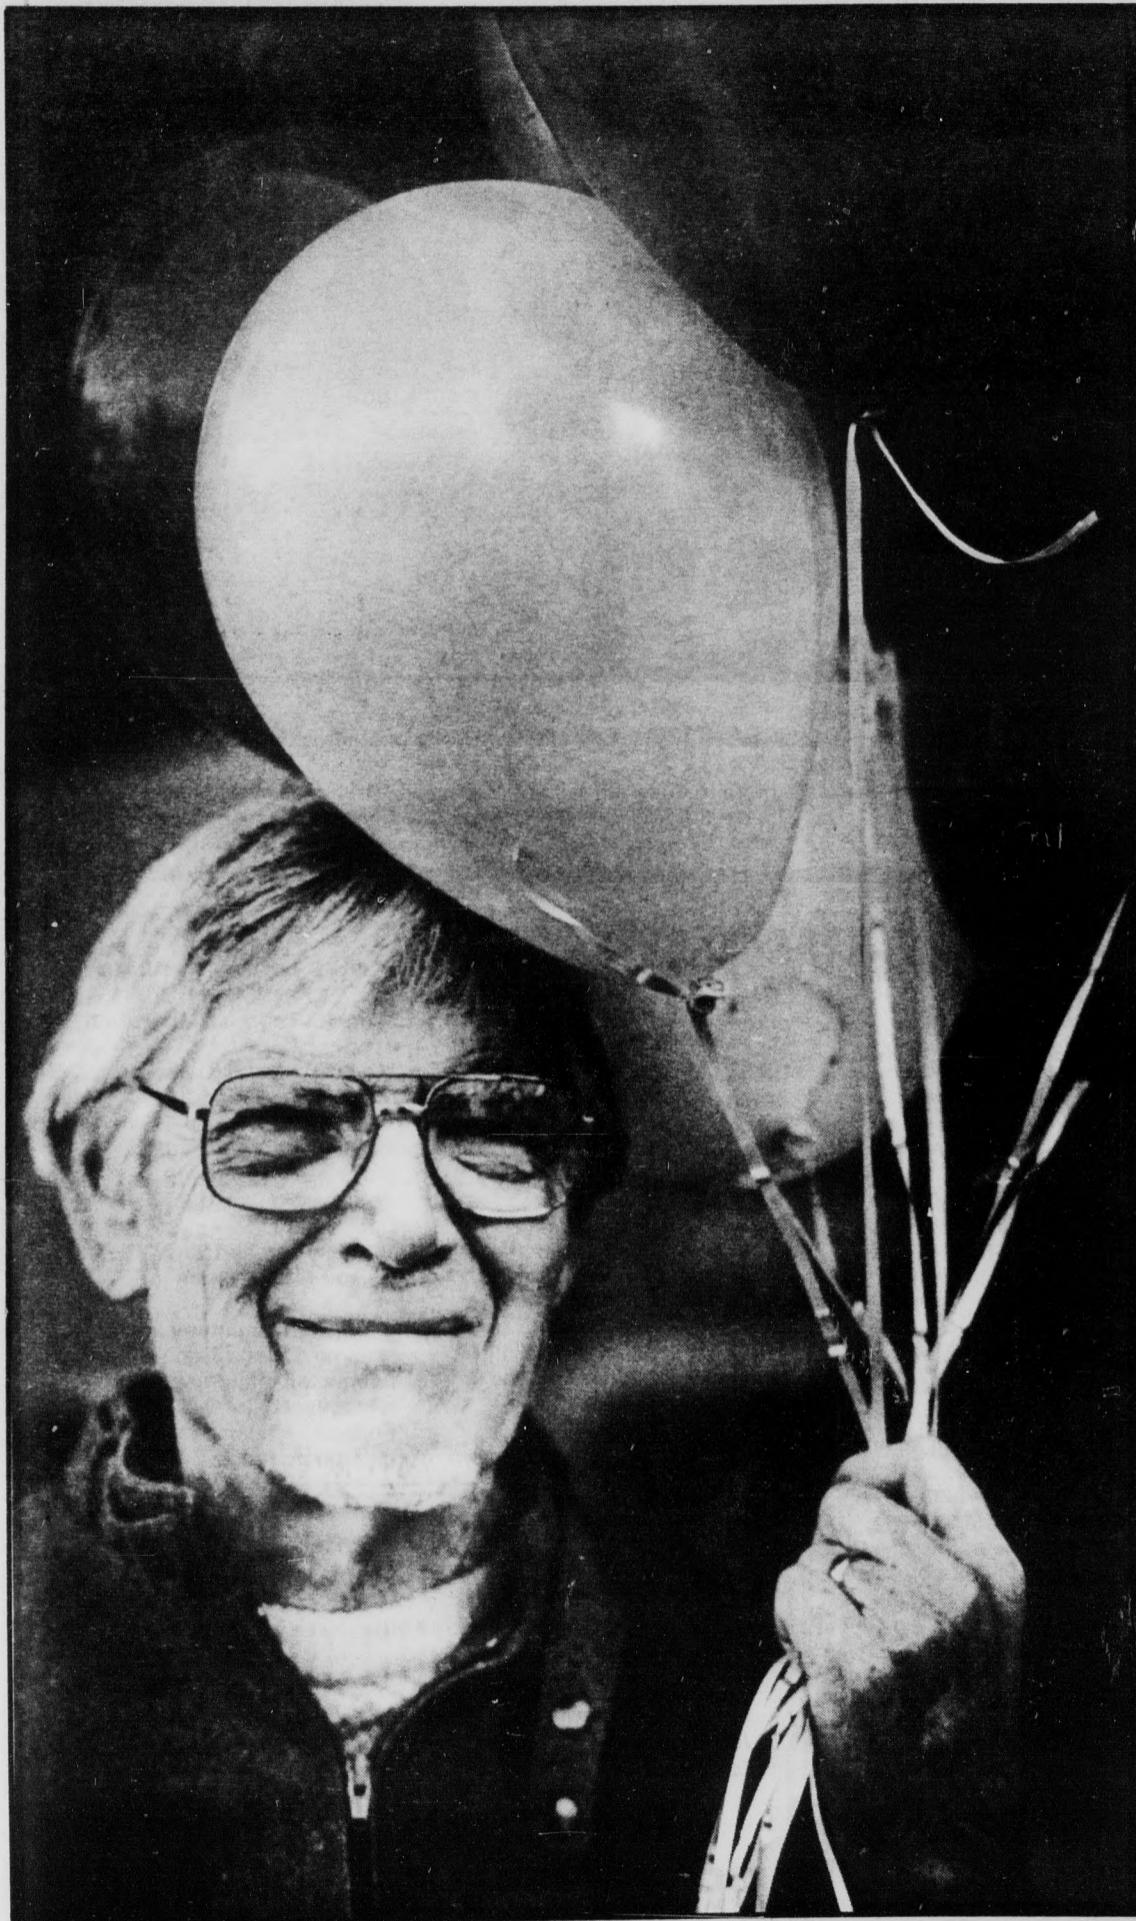

But the character that the children waited for did not disappoint them. Santa Claus arrived with Mrs. Claus atop a shiny red fire engine driven by Upland firefighters.

He was met by cheers and looks of awe from the youngsters, who later lined up by the Town Center kiosk to give him their Christmas lists.

Alta Loma girl headed on write track

By Mike Krapfl

Jenifer Clark writes to win. Clark, an Alta Loma 12-year-old, recently earned third prize in the "Cricket League" International Writing Competition.

The honor is her seventh from the monthly children's magazine.

She says she writes stories for the contests because "I like winning and because winning stories get published."

"And when a story is published in Cricket magazine," she said, "it goes across the world and people read your story, see your name and wonder what you look like."

Clark, who looks like she enjoys attention, said she started writing in second grade when a teacher forced her and her classmates to write weekly book reports.

The Alta Loma Junior High School seventh grader said she has continued writing because she has been encouraged by teachers. "They tell me I have talent," she said without a touch of self-consciousness.

Clark's grace turned to whine when the conversation shifted to math teachers, but she quickly recovered when the subject swung back to writing.

Her favorite subjects to write about, she said, are fantasy and anything is impossible."

The subject of her most recent award-winning effort is more than a little fantastic: a huge, inflatable cricket set afloat on Loch Ness as a hoax.

In her story, she wrote, "It (the cricket) made headlines. See CRICKET/Page 6

Communications fair draws many experts

The Upland High School Communications Fair last week offered students a chance to talk to professionals in the world of communications.

20 ALHS students to compete

The seventh running of the National Knowledge Master Open is scheduled for early this month.

Rules are on a contest disk. Contest questions are on another disk, sealed until the teacher/sponsor breaks the seal when the team is ready to compete.

This is the format for 20 Alta Loma Junior High School students and 1,000 other teams, totalling between 17,000 and 20,000 youngsters from 48 of the 50 states. Officials are waiting by the telephone and mailbox for word that Mississippi and Hawaii will also join. Canada will compete.

There are 200 challenging multiple choice questions from 15 areas relevant to secondary school curriculum. Different question sets have been prepared for junior high and high school divisions.

Students may discuss questions and come to a consensus on the multiple-choice questions, but points are lost as the seconds go by.

Once started the competition must be completed in one session, a two-hour block of time, with three timeouts allowed.

Those interested in watching the competition at Alta Loma Junior High School may visit the school from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Dec. 3.

Upland church hopes to assist homeless

By Kimberly Heinrichs

An Upland church hopes to fill the need for a place for the West Valley's homeless to get back on their feet again.

St. Mark's Episcopal Church has launched a Christmas campaign drive called "No Room at the Inn," to raise $100,000 to buy a small apartment building in Upland, campaign chairman Don Moore said.

Already the church provides temporary emergency shelter for more than a 1,000 people a year through its Hope Ministry, Moore said. But the program only pays for a motel room for a single weeknight or a weekend at a time, he said.

"It's not enough. It's a terrible thing to see them out on the street again," he said.

Moore is not just talking about the mentally ill or alcoholic homeless, who need shelter in this area according to testimony at a county hearing on the subject last spring.

He is also talking about whole families.

About half the homeless families have both parents, he said. The next biggest group are families headed by single mothers, but the program also gets requests from battered wives and single fathers, he said.

R.C. park adjacent to quarry not feasible

The San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors agreed last week that it is not financially feasible to build a 40-acre park adjacent to a sand and gravel quarry proposed north of Rancho Cucamonga.

The supervisors certified that the developer of the quarry, Fourth Street Rock Crusher, had acted in good faith to satisfy the condition set by the board Aug. 18 when it approved the quarry project.

Senior Planner Joseph Bellandi said the condition required the developer to do a study of the feasibility of building and maintaining the park.

"The cost of acquiring and maintaining the park makes it infeasible," Bellandi said. He said the county and the developer each would have had to pay for half of the project. It would have cost $1.6 million to buy the land, $3.6 million to build the park and $160,000 to maintain the park each year, he said.

County Supervisor Cal McElwain, whose district includes the 485-acre quarry site, said he was satisfied that the developer had made an adequate effort regarding the condition.

The board's vote included a resolution that even without the park, the quarry project's benefits should be considerations that outweigh the potential adverse environmental effects of the project.

R.C. keeps mortgage program

The Rancho Cucamonga City Council recently joined three other cities in order to keep its single-family mortgage revenue bond program alive.

Lauren Wasserman, Rancho Cucamonga's city manager, said the purpose of the program is to assist first-time home buyers by providing mortgages below market rates.

This year's tax reform changed the rules of the bond program though, making less money available to cities, Wasserman told the council.

In August 1985, the city had asked the state for a bond allocation of $150 million, according to Community Development Director Jack Lam.

Now, however, the most any city can receive is $10 million, Lam said.

Because an allocation of bonds worth $10 million is too small to pursue, the City Council approved a plan to join Colton, Palmdale and Porterville in order to divide a $40 million allocation.

but the story of the Loch Ness Monster remains unsolved."

Also unsolved is the whereabouts of her new project, a story of the Civil War's underground railroad. The manuscript, she said, has been lost somewhere amid the sheafs of poems, stories, journals and Teddy bears she collects in her room.

After she finds the manuscript and finds time for basketball practice, ballet lessons and her homework, she wants to earn her living by writing, Clark said.

"I want to be a novelist or a poet," she said. "I don't want to be a journalist because you have to write the facts and, like I told you, I like fantasy."

Clark's mother, Bernice, said she and her husband, Sheldon, like the idea of living with a writer. "We certainly admire her talent," she said, "she's pretty interesting to be around." □

Chaffey High School gets new flag pole

A new, 40-foot flag pole was installed on the Chaffey High School campus in front of Gardiner Spring Auditorium last week.

The project was a community project with the Ontario Rotary Club, Ontario Kiwanis Club and the Chaffey High School Associated Student Body.

The idea for a flag pole in front of the school came from Kiwanian Roger Dunlap, who also is a teacher at the school.

Participating in the dedication ceremony Monday were Dunlap, Superintendent of the Chaffey Joint Union High School District Mike Dirksen, Chaffey High School Principal David O. Stine, Associated Student Body President David Chinn and Rotary representative Bruce Hettle.

Local civic leader Briggs dies after stroke

By Andrew Horan

Homer Briggs, a popular and well-respected Ontario civic leader for the past 31 years, died Friday morning.

Briggs, 80, died of natural causes at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland, where he had been hospitalized since Nov. 24 following a stroke.

Shocked and sorrowful colleagues remembered Briggs as a dedicated, loyal and compassionate administrator and politician.

"His input and wisdom will be sorely missed," said Ontario Mayor Howard Snider.

"He was an outstanding school administrator and an outstanding city councilman," Snider said. "He was always a very fair, compassionate and forthright individual."

Briggs served on the City Council for the last 10 years, after retiring from a 21-year career as superintendent of the Ontario-Montclair School District.

"He was just a great asset to the school district and the community," said retired OMSD administrator Ray Wiltsey. "I am extremely sorry to hear he died."

Briggs was past president of the Ontario Host Lions Club and served as a district governor.

He was a member of the Ontario Masonic Lodge #301; Salvation Army board of directors; San Antonio Community Hospital Association; Ontario Mounted Police; and Westminster Presbyterian Church of Ontario.

"I don't know any other individual who worked harder," for the community, said Councilman Jim Bowman.

"Homer Briggs was a household name," Bowman added. "He was a legend." Briggs became legend for his even-tempered management style.

"Whatever the man did, he was on top of things," said Charles E. Morris, who worked for Briggs at OMSD and worked with him on Lions Club projects.

"I don't think I ever saw him lose his temper," Morris said. "He was a good individual to work with and for."

R.C. home pictured in Life magazine

By Mike Krapfl

Looking for a $100,000 dream home?

Well, the Blandings are and Life magazine has found 13 for them. One of them is in Rancho Cucamonga.

The home, pictured in November's issue of Life, is a new Tudor, complete with a manicured lawn and petunia garden.

Under the home's picture, the classified-advertising-styled caption reads "45 min. frm. dwntwn L.A. 1,225 sq. ft. 4 BR, 2 bath. Priced out of L.A. Many now live and work in the Inland Empire."

After seeing the article, Rancho Cucamonga Mayor Jeff King said, "I liked some of those other homes they pictured — especially those big homes down south — better than the Rancho home."

"Nonetheless," he said, "any time you get a national publication like Life picturing us as a place with quality homes, it's nothing but a plus for the whole community and for our efforts to market the community."

To do the latter, the city has just spent $20,000 to produce 5,000 sets of information packets describing the city.

Each packet includes a brochure describing Rancho Cucamonga as "a city with a plan" and four data sheets outlining the city in numbers and statistics.

Jack Lam, the city's community development director, said it's the packet, and not Life magazine, that will sell Rancho Cucamonga to potential homeowners and businesses.

"What we're trying to tell people in the brochure," Lam said, "is that we've got a quality of life and opportunity in our

Many who couldn't afford Thanksgiving food served

Churches saw to it less fortunate had happy holiday

By Kimberly Heinrichs

Thanks to the efforts of local churches, hundreds of West Valley residents who could not afford a traditional Thanksgiving dinner enjoyed turkey and all the trimmings last week.

Mike Miller was one of 75 people gathered in the parking lot next to Questward Foundation Ministries on Holt Boulevard, enjoying one of the church's first round of dinners. If it weren't for the church, he said he probably wouldn't be eating at all.

"I wouldn't be having Thanksgiving dinner. I'd be sitting in a park somewhere," he said. He is one of the approximately 40 homeless men sheltered at the church.

Earlier, the Hands of Love Ministries of the Word of Life Church of God in Ontario fed about 1,800 people at the Salvation Army church on Euclid Avenue during three shifts from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Six other local churches joined in the effort, leading to an overabundance of volunteers, said organizer Shirley Smith.

"It's incredible. Anyone that you see with a patch (name tag) on here has given up their Thanksgiving to come and help these people," she said.

The diners, mostly young families and senior citizens, attended a brief service before joining the line for turkey and mashed potatoes.

"We feed them the word and then we feed them the food," said organizer Shirley Smith.

Over at Questward the crowd was made up of a lot of homeless men, as well as a few couples and some families.

"We basically are ministering to the homeless people and the street people," said director the Rev. George Spaicia.

He said that the diners included many of the men staying at Questward, as well as others who heard of the dinner through word of mouth.

Spaicia said about 250 people showed up for the plates of turkey and sweet potatoes during the four-hour long affair.

"It's about half what we expected," he said, but added that many of the area's hungry were probably feasting at the various other dinners offered by charitable organizations in the area.

"I don't doubt that. They'd be here if they didn't," he said.

Neither organization required proof of need, but opened their doors and passed out food to everyone who showed up.

"Anyone that wants to can get fed," Smith said. "It's not up to us to decide who needs it. We can't judge what their inside needs are."

Many of the senior citizens come for the dinner more out of the need for companionship than food, said volunteer Loretta Little of the Hands of Love Ministries.

Smith said she started the dinners three years ago after she had helped out with the Thanksgiving dinners handed out on Skid Row in Los Angeles.

"I thought if they did it in Skid Row we could do it in Ontario," she said.

The first year saw about 780 diners and last year it was up to 1,048, Salvation Army Capt. Keith Bottjen said.

The Questward program is also growing, Spaicia noted.

"We had about 150 last year and that was before people knew where we were," he said. But this year's total topped last year's by about 100, he said.

Dinah LeMay of Ontario and her two youngsters joined the diners at Questward because of the spiritual goodwill associated with the church, she said. A few of the men who stay there have become good friends, she said.

Indeed her children and her sister's two children socialized with the others during the dinner. Her sister Debbie Hope was one of several singers who entertained the crowd from the back of a flatbed Chevy with contemporary Christian tunes.

"Evictions are probably the most common thing, or long-term unemployment," Moore said. "They don't wait to be evicted. They just store their furniture and live out of their cars."

It is those families that St. Mark's transitional shelter would house for 6-8 weeks, he said, until the parents found work, saved money for a rent deposit or recovered from illnesses.

With such concentrated help, Moore said, the ministry hopes to keep the homeless off the streets for good.

The church hopes to purchase a four-unit apartment house near its own site with the $100,000 gathered and an additional $50,000 grant from the Episcopalian Diocese of Los Angeles. But that offer expires next September, so Moore said the drive to gather funds for the remaining cost has begun in earnest.

Three of the apartments will be offered to homeless families free of charge, along with free food and laundry services, he said.

A homeless family will occupy the fourth unit and act as resident managers, he said. They will receive free room and board and will earn a small stipend, he said.

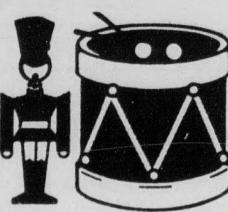

In addition, the ministry will pay for a part-time counselor to help the families, he said.

After the initial expense of buying the building, Moore estimates that it will take $27,000 a year to keep it up.

"We're going to have to have a healthy budget. We're going to have to work hard to maintain that every year," he said.

The church is reaching out to the general community for help with the first $100,000. The Rev. Charles Bennison and Moore will be making their pleas to local service organizations and other groups, Moore said.

St. Mark's 600 parishioners have been asked to contribute a special Christmas offering.

Newly landscaped site dedicated

The Humane Society of Pomona Valley dedicated a newly landscaped site last week at its offices at 500 Humane Way in Pomona.

The barren strip on the east side of the shelter was turned into "a lush oasis of trees, plants and grass" by the ornamental horticulture department at Cal Poly, according to society Executive Director William Hartford.

The work was completed as part of their senior class project for students enrolled in landscape design, irrigation and landscape management classes.

Members of Los Robles Club and professional landscaper Robert Montoya also donated time, he said. Montoya guided the students and provided equipment, he added.

In the pages of Life, the fictional Blandings never decided whether they'd like to be in a Rancho Cucamonga Tudor, a Conifer, Colo., cabin, a Lake Charles, La., Victorian or a Cambridge, Mass., condominium near Harvard Square.

"Although it's difficult to measure what that article really means to the city, it does get our name out and it does tell people that Rancho Cucamonga is real," said City Manager Lauren Wasserman.

"Some people," he said, "still don't believe there's such a place."

"PUPPETS PLEASE!"

Although not even three feet tall, the puppets of Shirley and Terry McManus carry a mighty big message.

Just listen to what Terry's green, fluttering Captain Bug told an assembly of 270 students at Bear Gulch Elementary School recently: "You can be anything or anyone, you know. And when it comes to drugs, you have the power to say no."

The students responded to the message as you'd expect children to respond to a talking bug. They giggled, they clapped, they shifted, shuffled and tried to touch. And they listened.

Which, according to Bear Gulch Principal Andy Carlmark, is why the McManuses and their 10 marionettes were invited to perform before the school's first and second graders.

"These puppets teach self-esteem, drug awareness, how to say no and how to be responsible," he said "and the students listen to those puppets."

They also talk to the puppets. When a creature who introduced himself as the "one and only Mr. Purple" disco danced before the students, he asked them what color they were.

The answers ranged from pink to black, but nobody answered purple. Mr Purple responded by telling the students "you're all nice colors, but wouldn't you like to be purple? You should be purple."

The ugliness of Mr. Purple's fanged and bigoted face is something Linda Tummolo, the president of the Friends of Bear Gulch, said she hopes the children remember about their conversation with the puppet.

Tummolo, whose group brought the traveling puppet show to the school, said she also hopes the children remember that the show, even though it carried a serious message, was fun.

"We hope the students realize that learning can be fun," she said. "And we also want to introduce them to the creative arts."

Shirley McManus said she learned the art of creating puppets and their shows during a visit to her hometown library in San Diego.

"At first," she said, "I just wanted to learn to make puppets. But when I did, people said the puppets needed a show."

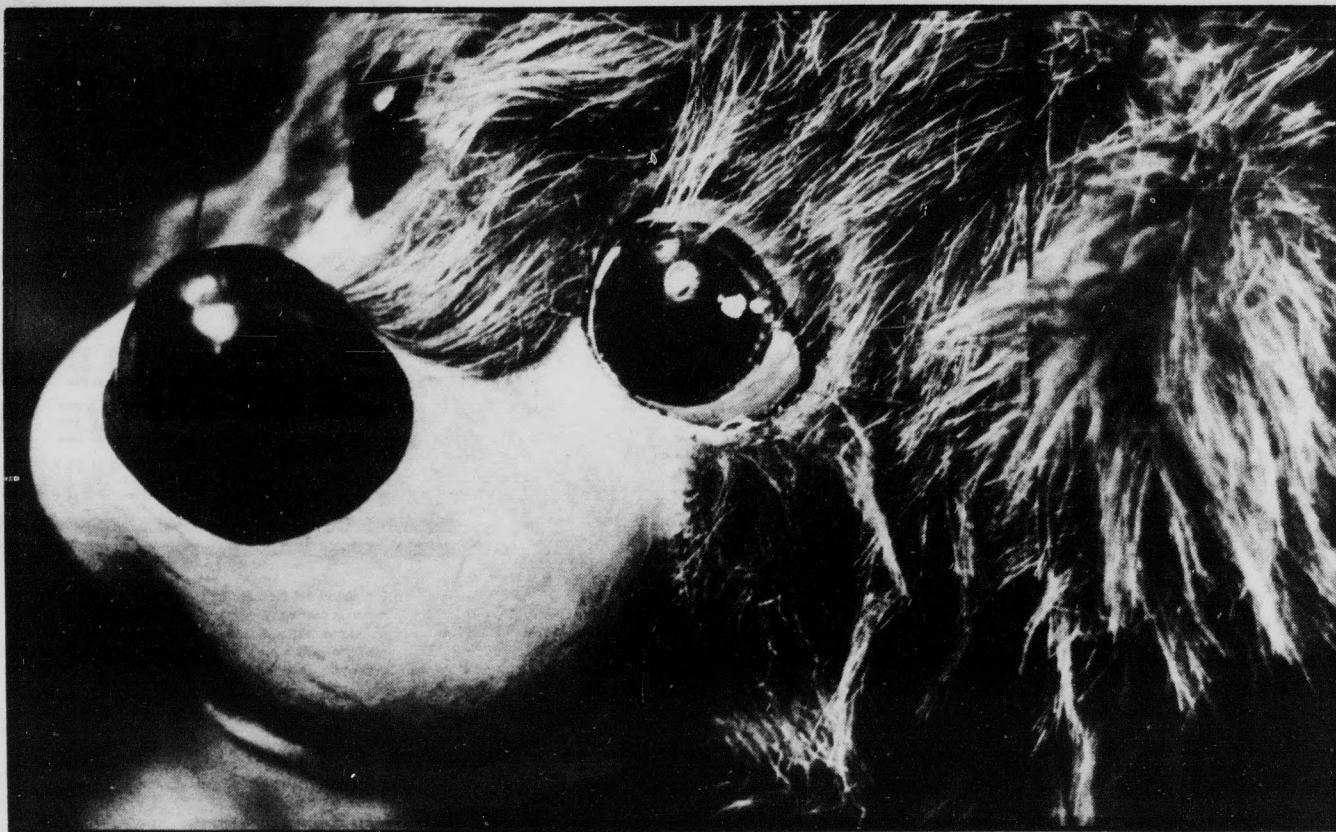

"So I started doing shows," she said. "And then people said they wanted shows with messages. So I did those and people started paying me for it."

McManus, a veteran of 20 years of puppeteering, now takes her show and its message to about 600 classrooms, libraries and recreation centers around Southern California every year.

She and daughter Terry do it "because we like to try to spread a lot of love and happiness and we want the kids to smile and laugh."

At Bear Gulch Elementary, the kids smiled and laughed. And, according to Carlmark, "They learned a little about getting along with each other." □

THIS LITTLE MACHINE CAN SAVE 1/3 OF YOUR SEWING TIME

It's called the Baby Lock®, but it's no baby when it comes to sewing. Baby Lock is like three machines in one. It (1) sews a flexible straight stitch, (2) overlocks the edge to prevent ravelling, and (3) trims the excess seam allowance . . . all in one operation. The seam is completely finished exactly like the seams in your most expensive factory produced garments. You will also be amazed at the price. So competitive, you can own one even if you already have a conventional machine.

Buquet sees red over council appointment

By Mike Krapfl

The illusion of one happy team working together to lead Rancho Cucamonga barely outlasted a 20-minute ceremony last week to swear in the city's first elected mayor and two council members.

The ceremony, in the words of former mayor Jeff King, was "a celebration of our electorate process and of our system of government."

Until, that is, just-sworn-in Mayor Dennis Stout and council member Deborah Brown joined council members King and Pamela Wright in appointing Wright mayor pro tempore.

The mayor pro tempore presides over a city council meeting when the mayor is absent.

Chuck Buquet, minutes after taking the oath to serve as a city council member for another four years, voted against Wright's appointment.

Buquet, speaking after the ceremony, said "I don't think Pam has the time or the experience to serve as mayor pro tem. She's only served on the council for 2½ years."

Wright left the crowded council meeting room in the Lions Park Community Center immediately after the ceremony and could not be reached at home later for comment.

Buquet, who has served on the council 4½ years, said he thought he deserved the appointment.

"Ever since I joined the council I've been active in all its affairs," Buquet said. "I haven't even had time to take a vacation."

"And," he continued, "I think my re-election is indicative of some support for my service to the community."

District funding proposed

By Mike Krapfl

Assessment districts should be used to fund burying of Rancho Cucamonga's overhead utility cables, according to a report recently released by the city's Chamber of Commerce.

D. Thomas Flynn, chairman of the chamber's (Utility) Undergrounding Subcommittee, wrote that it is "the feeling of the subcommittee that separate funding was needed to accomplish the total goal of undergrounding all utilities within the city."

"After much discussion," the report continues, "an assessment district seemed to be the most appropriate method of funding."

At present, the city's Planning Commission requires developers to bury overhead telephone, cable television and utility wires, or pay for their future undergrounding.

The chamber's Economic Development Committee assigned Flynn and his subcommittee to look into a more comprehensive plan to bury the cables.

The Planning Commission has been requiring developers to bury the city's cables since last fall in an effort to beautify the city. According to Flynn's report, 185 miles of cables have been buried and 152.7 miles remain overhead.

"The large cost of this task — especially in the already-developed areas of the city — drive the need to form an assessment district," according to Flynn's report.

The cost to bury one foot of utility cable is about $160, according to Barrye R. Hanson, Rancho Cucamonga's senior civil engineer.

Mayor Dennis Stout, while still the city's chairman of the Planning Commission, had asked the chamber for ideas on a comprehensive undergrounding plan.

During his last appearance as a city planner two weeks ago, Stout told the Planning Commission, "My hope is that we'll come up with a solution that is more global than just charging the people (to bury cables) when they develop a piece of land. I'm confident there's a better way to do it."

When contacted last week, Stout said he had yet to see the chamber's report.

"I'll have to take a look at (their plan) and perhaps get more clarification on what they mean by an assessment district before I can say if their suggestion is a better way or not," he said.

Salvation Army kettles march on

By Suzanne Sproul

Many of the West Valley's needy and homeless rely on the dollar bills and small change tossed into the Salvation Army kettles which dot street corners each Christmas.

And believe it or not, those kettles and their stands take a beating. So much so that the Salvation Army needed 15 new stands this season or its fund-raising program could have been impaired.

The Salvation Army asked the Chaffey High School vocational welding shop for help.

Twenty students in the advanced metal shop class at the high school took the challenge on as a project.

When the students reported for class each morning at 6:30 for about the last two weeks, most of their time was occupied with bending and shaping the metal stands.

"We could have ordered them from a company but we thought it would be a good way to involve the high school and community," said Norman Patton, youth director.

If the Salvation Army had ordered them from a company, each stand would have cost about $119.

Instead, the Salvation Army ended up paying $15, or simply the cost of materials, per stand. "At $119 each, the money we would have spent on the stands would have taken a good chunk of money out of our food fund which is used each year to help feed the needy at Christmas," Patton said.

Last year, the Salvation Army helped between 500 to 1,000 families last year.

"I think the project was of mutual benefit for all involved," Patton said.

The Salvation Army kettle program begins Friday at various locations in Ontario, Upland, Montclair and Rancho Cucamonga.

H.O.T. Tips

(House of Tools)

The pad painters sold for painting trim are excellent glue spreaders. Their short fibers & stiff backing let you apply a smooth coat of glue faster than with a brush. You can dry green-wood bowls in your microwave oven. The microwave heats the water clear through the wood and causes it to steam from the pores. Make sure you remove all metal from the bowl such as the face plate, set the oven in a low to medium setting and run the oven one minute on and one off for about ten minutes, letting the moisture out of the oven from time to time. The bowls will change shape about as much as they would in air drying but shouldn't crack.

Victoria activist content enough

ACTIVE president not planning to set higher sights

By Mike Krapfl

Jeri Kerney has followed in the footsteps of Rancho Cucamonga's newest City Council member, but says she has no intention of following any further.

Last week, Kerney replaced Deborah Brown as the president of the Advisory Committee to Improve Victoria's Environment (ACTIVE). Brown resigned the post after being elected to the City Council earlier this month.

Asked if she was interested in joining Brown on the Council, Kerney said, "No, I have absolutely no political ambitions beyond Victoria."

Like Brown, Kerney is a relative newcomer to Rancho Cucamonga. And like Brown, she got involved in community affairs shortly after she moved into town 13 months ago.

Although she says she has been involved in the affairs of various communities for the past 15 years, Kerney said she doesn't consider such work a duty. "When things came up that I've felt concerned me, I've just gotten involved."

What got her ACTIVE in Rancho Cucamonga, she said, was a park and recreation opening on the special interest group's board. "I have a background in that kind of work so I volunteered myself," she said.

Her background in that kind of work is a degree in administration — particularly wild land management — from her hometown school, San Diego State University. She's also worked with handicapped students in the San Francisco Bay area and in the San

Upland takes tumble

When it came right down to it, Upland High School's defensive unit couldn't stand up to it. Which was, to be sure, somewhat of a surprise to Hacienda Heights Wilson coach Dave Merrill.

On a cool Friday evening at Upland High School, Merrill's Wildcats used a tenacious 254-yard ground game to put the Scots away 28-10 in quarterfinal play of the CIF's Eastern Conference playoffs.

While Upland head coach Pete Merandi was unable to comment afterward on his usually solid defense, Merrill said he was pleased, yet surprised by the outcome.

"You look at those guys on film, like against Damien, and they're tough, very tough," Merrill said after his Wildcats (9-4) advanced to a semifinal clash with Ramona.

In other prep football action Friday, Fontana stayed alive in the Big Five Conference playoffs, upending Loyola 17-14 at Glendale High School. Ontario Christian was ousted from the Inland Conference tourney via a 23-0 loss to Bishop Union. Damien fell to Ramona 68-12 in Eastern Conference play.

Fontana plays a semifinal game Friday night.

Eric Vilchis

Upland quarterback Greg Fiorindo tried to escape would-be tacklers in the Scots' loss Friday in the CIF football playoffs.

Kick-return standout leads Panthers on all-conference club

Chaffey College kick-returner Desmond Johnson was named to the All-Southern California Athletic Conference football team chosen by the coaches.

Johnson earned the berth as a specialist on the first team offensive unit.

Wide receiver Greg Holt and tight end Matt Rasmussen earned second team offense berths for the Panthers, who won only once in the SCAC. Offensive lineman Ron Shipley was also honored for Chaffey.

Chaffey didn't put a player on the first team defense, but landed three on the second team defense.

Defensive linemen Ben Mamea of Chaffey was honored along with linebacker Mike Estes and defensive back Jeff Carter.

"They were all very consistent players for us all season long," said Chaffey coach Orest Stetkevich. "Shipley and Holt are (NCAA) Div. I prospects."

Upland-Montclair cage play set

Scheduling problems aside, the Upland-Montclair High School Basketball Tournament appears to be as strong as ever as it prepares to tip-off Tuesday.

Montclair head coach Lanny Moore said the 27th edition of the tournament will feature the addition of two junior varsity teams to the bracket. Because Dec. 1 fell on Monday, the tournament was pushed back to start next week.

The change in the dates forced two teams to drop out. Montclair and Upland will, thus, send junior varsity squads to face teams in the opening round.

The tournament will run four days with the first three featuring games at both the Upland and Montclair gymnasiums. The finals will be held Dec. 12 at Montclair.

The U-M field includes five defending league champions.

San Gorgonio, which finished the 1985-86 Citrus Belt Conference with a 23-4 mark, is joined by defending Hacienda League titlist Ganesha (24-1). Claremont (22-5) won the Baseline League last year. Banning (21-4 in the Sunkist League) and Covina (12-11, Valle Vista League) are back after winning championships a year ago.

Four CBL will be on hand. Fontana, Eisenhower, and

Barry Howard

Redlands join San Gorgonio. Beside Ganesha, Etiwanda and Montclair represent the Hacienda League.

Omnitrans cards offer some riders a fare reduction

Last year more than 1 million riders took advantage of Omnitrans' reduced senior citizen and handicapped fares for fixed route buses, Dial-A-Ride, Dial-A-Lift and Van Go.

This year seniors and handicapped people interested in reduced fares for Omnitrans transportation services may purchase Omnitrans ID cards.

The Senior ID cards, valid through Dec. 31, 1987, sell for $2 and entitle the card holder to ride the bus for 30 cents and Dial-A-Ride and Van Go for half fare. Handicapped ID cards entitle the handicapped to ride for the same fares as seniors, plus they also may ride Dial-A-Lift for 75 cents.

Seniors and handicapped people purchasing ID cards before Jan. 31, 1987, will receive a free vinyl ID card holder. ID cards may be purchased at the following locations:

- Omnitrans Metro, 1700 W. Fifth St., San Bernardino.
- San Bernardino Senior Center, 600 W. Fifth St., San Bernardino.
- San Bernardino Dial-A-Ride, 1510 W. Fifth St., San Bernardino.

Landfill contains some chemicals

By Patrick McGreevy

The Upland Landfill, closed since 1979, has been found to contain "considerable" levels of benzene and vinyl chloride — two chemicals known to cause cancer, according to a report released last week.

However, measurements taken off the landfill property in neighboring residential areas found no evidence that the chemicals are leaking in gaseous form, according to the study by the South Coast Air Quality Management District.

The two-year study of 20 Southern California landfills was released this week after delivery to the Environmental Protection Agency. The EPA commissioned the study for $70,000 to identify which Southern California landfills need additional attention and possible cleanup measures, according to the air quality district's laboratory manager Margil W. Wadley.

One other trash dump in the county, the Redlands Landfill, also was found to contain measurable levels of vinyl chloride and benzene although they were "low" and "very low" respectively, Wadley said.

Benzene is a chemical found in gasoline and paint thinners, household chemicals only recently prohibited from dumping in most landfills, Wadley said.

"We believe the vinyl chloride is being generated within the landfills by biological action," he said.

The Upland Landfill at the corner of Campus Avenue and 14th Street, had "pretty exciting" concentrations of vinyl chloride within the trash heap, Wadley said.

"The benzene level is considerably higher in Upland than at the Redlands site," he added.

The measurements are not sufficient to be considered ambient threats, although no study was done of the surrounding water table.

Wadley said Upland was one of only five landfills for which off-site readings were taken to determine whether the chemical gases were escaping.

Fernando Valley.

Since moving to Rancho Cucamonga, she's divided her time between work as a physical therapy aide in Claremont, her husband, Michael, their two children and ACTIVE.

The presidency of the group, she said, was not something she had pursued. "It was the kind of thing where somebody asked 'who wants the job?' and everybody stepped back but me."

She didn't step back because Brown had asked her to step forward and take the post.

That step taken, she said her next one "is to try to figure out why it's going to take General Telephone so long to restore free calls to Ontario."

ACTIVE has been fighting for the restoration of free Ontario calls since June, when the company began charging by the minute for such calls.

Beyond that, she said, "as things pop up that affect Victoria, we'll meet them head-on."

The experience of meeting problems head-on as a member of ACTIVE has been "eye-opening" Kerney said.

"I've learned that when enough people band together they can really bring a lot of pressure to effect changes," she said. "Active people can really make a difference."
